VCUARTS THEATRE LAND ACKNOWLEDGEMENT

We honor the indigenous Powhatan land in Tsenacomoco, also known as Richmond, Virginia, where Virginia Commonwealth University sits. This acknowledgement does not take the place of authentic relationships with indigenous communities, but serves as a first step in honoring the land we occupy and as an act of resistance against the erasure of their histories. As you watch this play, we encourage you to reflect on the land that you are on, who the traditional keepers of the land are, what the treaty relationship is, or if it is unceded territory.

STATEMENT OF DELONGING, DIGNITY, AND JUSTICE

The faculty and staff of the Department of Theatre at VCUarts unequivocally condemn all forms of bigotry, racism, and anti-Blackness. We are determined to support all our students by mindfully creating a culture of both safety and accountability within our department where BIPOC students feel seen and all our students feel valued. We seek to include, reflect, and give agency to the varied experiences of our community being mindful of the historically marginalized AAPI, BIPOC, LGBTQ+, and ADA communities.

DIRECTOR'S NOTE

The very first performance of this classic legendary piece of theatre was a series of narrative poetic monologues that would later become the critically acclaimed choreopoem For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide/ when the rainbow is enuf by Ntozake Shange. The original poems were performed at a women's bar outside Berkley, California in 1974, fifty years ago, with four other artists including the playwright herself, a couple of musicians, and a dancer. Ntozake's seminal piece of dramatic text literally transformed the NY theatre scene when it premiered on Broadway in 1976. It wasn't a drama, comedy, musical, or any other form of theatre that had been previously characterized. It was a choreopoem as identified by the author herself. It was raw, authentic storytelling that finally gave the voices of Black women an opportunity to be heard without the window dressing of an overly produced theatrical event. The stage was almost bare, the women had one simple elegant colorful satin crepe dress with no frills. They each stood on the stage barefoot and real. It was a theatrical phenomenon. Fifty years later it still is.

In 1977, this play transformed my life and started me on my journey of self-discovery, self-determination and liberation. It was this play that challenged me to have the courage to be who I am and affirmed my identity as "a colored girl". It made me recognize that the process of becoming an artist is a lifelong pursuit. Several generations of artists since have had the opportunity to be transformed by the brilliance of the activist poet, artist, and feminist scholar Ntozake Shange of 1974. For Colored Girls... has a legacy and this work is meant to be a gift. It is meant to be witnessed and not merely passively watched. It is intended to be a challenge and an inspiration. May you receive it in the spirit it is given.

With courage and love,

– Dr. T

Director, Tawnya Pettiford-Wates, PhD

TAWNIA PETTIFORD-WATES, PH.D

(she/her/we; Director) Professor of Acting and Directing Pedagogy at Virginia Commonwealth University and the Co-Artistic Director & Founder of The Conciliation Project, a non-profit social justice theatre company www.theconciliationproject.org. Dr. T is a playwright, director, actor, poet, and writer. She has appeared in the New York Shakespeare Festival's Broadway production of For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide / When the rainbow is enuf performing in both the 1st national and international touring companies. Her television, film, industrial, voice over and commercial credits are extensive. Favorite directing projects include uncle tom:deconstructed for The Conciliation Project, Passing Strange for Firehouse Theatre, The Niceties for The Conciliation LAB, and Fences for the Virginia Rep, all to critical acclaim. Most recently, Whitesplaining a collaboration with VCUarts Theatre and The Conciliation Project. The work of The Conciliation Project has intentionally engaged communities around issues of race, racism, and historic and systemic oppression. Fun fact: She's featured voice talent for the video game HALO. She's a featured scholar in Black Acting Methods: critical approaches, a best seller on Amazon. Her chapter "The Conciliation Project as a Social Experiment: Behind the Mask of Uncle Tom-ism and the Performance of Blackness" was featured in an anthology titled, African American Arts, Activism, Aesthetics and Futurity, edited by Dr. Sharrell D. Luckett. A sampling of Dr. T's articles, presentations, and workshops can be found at www.coveringtheground.com.

CHRISTINE C. WYATT

(she/they; Choreographer) is the Choreographer and Embodiment Coach and is a VCU Dance & Choreography Alumna Class of '18. She's been teaching, choreographing, and dancing in Richmond for 10 years while centering community, equity, and liberation in her process. This iteration of For Colored Girls Who Have Considered Suicide/ When the Rainbow is Enuf at VCU marks 5 years of collaborating with Dr. Tawnya Pettiford Wates. Choreographing Passing Strange (2018), Les Blancs (2021), Whitesplaining (2022), and several other projects directed by Dr. T were a joy and it has been an honor working with this cast of inspiring Black women.

MAKEDA MCCREARY

(Choral Director) is a musician, songwriter, and choir director born and raised in Richmond, VA. She is thrilled to join the team of this powerful choreopoem: For Colored Girls... She has previously worked with Director Dr. Tawnya Pettiford-Wates on the plays Whitesplaining and Get Up Stand Up...The Other Part of the Dream. This choreopoem is soul enriching and it has been such a gift to put these beautiful words to melodies. As you experience the artistry of these young women and the crew, I hope you also find God in yourself.

NICOLE COWANS

(Voice/Dialect Coach) is honored to serve as the Voice, Speech & Dialect Coach for VCU's mainstage production of For Colored Girls. With a passion for empowering performers to connect deeply with their vocal instruments, Nicole's expertise lies in guiding actors to authentically express emotion and truth through their voices. In this production, she worked closely with the cast to help them unlock the full potential of their vocal expression, enabling them to weave together a tapestry of sound that resonates with authenticity, vulnerability, and power. By facilitating a meaningful connection between vocalization and emotion, Nicole assisted the performers in telling stories with clarity and sincerity, in order to share an immersive and heartfelt experience with the audience. Her collaboration with this production team aimed to elevate the storytelling process, making it a rich and emotionally resonant journey for all. For more info: www.nicolecowans.com

KYLE LEE

(he/him; Dramaturg) is currently a senior at VCU, and is pursuing a B.A. in Theater and minor in History. This is his third mainstage production! He is also the current president of the S.A.L.T student theater group. He would like to thank all his friends and family for their love and support. Specifically like to thank Marya Brice, Dr. T, and his mother for supporting me and teaching me through this production.

BRIGID TAMAS

(she/her; Scenic Designer) is a Senior at VCU pursuing a B.F.A. in Theatre. # vcuarts | theatre SCHOLARSHIPS

---

Every year talented VCU Department of Theatre students benefit from the generosity of your donations to our scholarships. The department has a variety of funds that contribute to student success. Criteria for award recipients vary and cover undergraduate and graduate students of merit, students from different disciplines of theatre, students of color and students with financial need. There are many more deserving students who need your help, and your donation could make all the difference.

Thank you to all the alumni, family, faculty, staff and supporters who have made these scholarships possible over the years.
